Courts, except before a jury in the Constitu-tional District Courts of the United States; or to subject such persons to such trial, except upon the indictment of a grand jury. These rights are guaranteed to every person, under all circumstances, by the Constitution itself.

And we fully believe that the loyal people of the United States are worthy of their fathers, Trains Arrive. who framed the Constitution, and will be found unwilling to surrender rights so sacred and so essential to their liberties. We believe that the Executive acts of which we complain, were done rather in inadvertency by subordinate officers, than in the deliberate purpose of subverting the Consti-tution, or with the sanction of the President.

The stretch of power, however, is too great and too dangerous to the liberties of the people, to pass without the protest of the free and loyal Democracy. If done as a part of a full and deliberate policy, they strike at the root of American liberty, and we are drifting from the safe anchorage of the Constitution into an unknown wilderness of cruel waters. > STATUTES OF INDIANA. GAVIN & HORD'S REVISION.

The second volume of Messrs. Gavin & Hord's compilation of Indiana Statutes has just appeared. This volume completes their work. Its mechanical execution is ver creditable; and the skill, learning, and labor which the editors have bestowed on it, ment the highest praise. None but learned, diligent lawyers could have produced stitutional tone of much of the discussion in

The second volume embraces all the public statutes of Indiana now in force upon the subjects to which it relates, sions against the rights of slavery in the slaveand the first ail excepting the acts of the last regular and extra sessions of the Legislature. It is a great excellence of the compilation that all existing statutes on each subject are collected together in the same place in these volumes; so that the reader can see at a glance all the and creating a disregard for the Constitution legislation in force on any given subject.
